  - In Memoriam 20
As I come up to the one-year mark of taking on the Director role at Binners’ Project, I’m amazed to look back at all that has been accomplished over that short period of time. While we continue to see the deep impacts that the pandemic and opioid crisis have had on the community, these also serve as reminders of why the work that we do is so important. Our social enterprise program has seen ongoing recovery and growth over the last year, the Coffee Cup Revolution returned, and we have been able to make some serious leaps forward in our Universal Cart Initiative.

I came to the Project as someone who admired the work being done from afar, and also identified with the philosophy of centring the voices of those that you serve in the work that you do. I was delighted to discover that what I saw as an outside observer held true to the internal workings of Binners’ Project, and I couldn’t be more proud to help lead such a group. I am so grateful to have been able to step into the role surrounded by a team that welcomed and supported me as I came onboard.

Our core staff team has seen some additional changes over the past year: We wished our former Operations Manager, Kevin, a fond farewell as he returned home to France. We also hired two new full-time staff: Kate and Flora; both arriving just in time for our annual fundraiser where we raised $30,902!

Our social enterprise program added two new sorting sites over the course of the year and saw a 34% increase in hours binners worked compared to last year. While we did not see much of a return to in-person events over the last year, resulting in this number being lower than we’d like, we are happy to report that we are already in discussions with event organizers for the 2022 season. Our team has also continued to work on optimizing operations, and we’re confident that the changes made will help ensure the long-term sustainability of our social enterprise programs and increase opportunities for binners.

I’m so grateful for the opportunity to share with you all of the amazing work we’ve done over the last year at Binners’ Project. Thank you for taking the time to sit down and read through this report and for any of the ways (big or small) you’ve supported us. Enjoy!

Sean Miles
Director, Binners’ Project

Our work takes place on the shared, unceded lands of the xʷməθkʷəy̓əm (Musqueam), Skwxwú7mesh (Squamish) & səl̓ilwətaʔɬ (Tsleil-Waututh) peoples.

Binners’ Project
What we do

At its core, Binners’ Project is a group of waste-pickers working together to improve their economic opportunities and destigmatize their work. Binners, also known as dumpster-divers, use refundable containers and other items of value to supplement their income.

To improve binners’ economic opportunities, we have created social enterprise programs that work to divert landfill waste at commercial and residential properties, as well as events. These opportunities provide a more stable way for binners to earn a reliable income, as well as increase binners’ ability to divert waste from landfills.

In our effort to destigmatize binners’ work, we run a number of advocacy and infrastructure programs that provide visibility to binners and amplify their voices at the policy level. Infrastructure programs like the Universal Cart Initiative and the Binners Hook provide valuable tools for binners to use, making their work more efficient and safe while also recognizing the essential service they provide to our communities. Additionally, advocacy work and community consultations allow binners to engage in policy discussions, lifting up the voices of those who are often invisible.

Our work is guided by a triple bottom line:

- WASTE DIVERSION
- SOCIAL INCLUSION
- COMMUNITY ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT
Who Are the Binners?

Binners are a vulnerable population, with a range of features that lock in marginalization, poverty, housing insecurity, and political invisibility. Most are dealing with, or have previously dealt with, addictions, mental health issues, physical disabilities, abuse, and/or homelessness. These keep in place barriers to full social and economic inclusion.

Many binners have barriers to participating in formal, full-time employment and resort to more flexible and entrepreneurial methods that suit their abilities, capacity, and lifestyle. Their livelihoods stem from refunds received from used containers collected from bins. Binners positively contribute to our environment by diverting a considerable amount of waste from landfills.

Binners’ Project prides itself on its low-barrier membership model. It’s simple, and as we say: If you bin, you’re in. All it takes to become a member is attendance to three of our weekly Binners’ Meetings. Once a binner becomes a member, they receive a uniform, and can begin participating in income opportunities.

This year we engaged a total of 203 unique binners throughout the year

Binners’ Project

Binner Profile: Eunice

After someone recommended she should come to a meeting a few months before, Eunice finally joined the Project in early 2020. She worked up enough courage to attend a Binners’ Meeting on her own, and has been a consistent member ever since. She has become more involved in our community engagement programs, helping host outreach booths at community events, and even doing some public speaking with groups about her experience working with the Project. Eunice is particularly excited about moving our Binners’ Meetings back indoors in the coming year, as she has missed the opportunity to give feedback as a group, and build community with her fellow binners.
Binners’ Meetings

The cornerstone of our programs is our weekly meeting with binners. The Binners’ Meetings have been happening every Tuesday since 2016, and are an important constant for binners to return to year after year.

The Binners’ Meetings offer a unique opportunity to hear from our membership about what is working for them, and where they see new opportunities. It’s from these meetings that many of our pilot programs were initiated, including the Binners Hook, the Universal Cart Initiative, and our social enterprise programs.

Since March 17, 2020, we have been hosting the Binners’ Meetings in the alley behind our offices at 312 Main Street. This is where we hand out vital information to the community, including closures and openings of community services, vaccine clinic locations, and good news like new sorting sites opening. While the alleyway meetings provided a safe way for us to gather during the pandemic, we are so excited to return to in-person meetings in 2022.

This year, we also continued our income replacement program, which we began during the pandemic, offering binners a $10 honorarium in recognition for the continued loss of shifts as the pandemic continued. We ended the income replacement at the end of March 2022 as the return of summer events means more hours for binners to work.
Social Enterprise Programs
Back-of-House Waste Sorting

The back-of-house waste sorting program was created in 2017 with the aim to provide income opportunities to binners year-round.

This service offers businesses and residential buildings the opportunity to have binners sort through waste on-site in their refuge rooms, ensuring waste is properly diverted and hauler requirements are complied with.

The pandemic continues to impact this program and our ability to provide income opportunities to binners. Even still, we were able to bring on two new sites this year with BC Housing and New Amsterdam Cafe.

As an additional service offering, we provide data collection services that allow us to generate reports to clients that help them to better understand the makeup of their waste, including contamination rates, trends, and the volume of items diverted from the landfill.

At just one site, we diverted approximately 3 metric tonnes of waste last year

Brenda sorts the waste at one of our Back-of-House Sorting sites.

David checks in at our BC Housing site, a new sorting site this year.
Our Back-of-House Sorting partners in 2020-2021 were:

Binner Profile: Lesly

Lesly joined the Project in 2019 and has been a reliable, consistent worker from the beginning. He has always had a preference for weekend shifts, which are sometimes harder to fill. Lesly is recognized by his peers as one of the hardest workers on our team, and while he is definitely a man of few words, he always has the widest smile behind his mask.

Lesly is one of our newest staff members, and when we recently approached him about joining our staff team, he responded with an excited yes and was even willing to sign his paperwork the same day! We’re so excited to see what’s in store for Lesly in the coming year.

Client Testimonials

“The binners visit Save On Meats twice a week, and transform our very busy garbage, cardboard and recycling area, and make it Crystal Clean. It’s a big job, and I truly appreciate the heart and effort that goes into this task. The binners are always cheerful and more than willing to go beyond”

Eileen Stanley,
Recover Chef at Save on Meats

“Binners’ has been extremely easy to work with and an effective alternative solution to improving our waste diversion. From their data collection to scheduling flexibility the onsite teams are professional, friendly and accommodating. We look forward to continuing our journey with them.”

Nikki Stewart,
Property Manager at Hudson Pacific Properties
Brian was on the team helping at Mural Festival’s Granville Promenade takeover this summer.

Waste Education at Events

Event season is always a highlight for binners participating in the social enterprise program. Binners enjoy getting to interact with the public at zero waste stations where they help guests ensure that materials go into their proper streams, decreasing the amount of waste heading to the landfill.

As the pandemic continued throughout 2021, so did event cancellations. Binners worked just a few events this year including Car Free Day and Vancouver Mural Festival’s Granville Promenade takeover.

Our event partners in 2020-2021 were:

- Car Free Day
- Vancouver Mural Festival

Training Program

This year, we completed the delivery of our eight month training program funded by the Ministry of Social Development and Poverty Reduction as part of the Employer Sponsored Training fund. Some highlights of this program include:

- Three field trips to waste facilities, providing an invaluable opportunity for hands-on learning.
- Increase in participants reported self-esteem and confidence on-the-job.
- Marked performance improvements by participants in both leadership and waste-sorting skills.

Advocacy & Community Engagement

Community Engagement

Workshops, Tours, & Presentations

We often receive requests from schools, community groups, and corporate teams for binners to lead workshops or tours. We have since expanded this work as part of our other fee-for-service work to ensure binners’ expertise and participation is properly compensated.

This year, we partnered with Cross Cultural Walking Tours, who included us as a stop on a number of their community tours, including ones done in partnership with Overdose Prevention Society and DragonBoat BC. Other partners this year included St. George’s School, Yarrow Society, and LUSH Cosmetics.

Peer Work

We were grateful to be able to continue much of the peer-to-peer work that became a vital lifeline for many during the pandemic. This included:

- The continuation of our monthly wellbeing calls, where binners offer peer-to-peer check-ins over the phone with Binners’ Project members, and
- line engagement at the Binners’ Meeting where a binner greets members at the meeting, ensuring they feel welcome and receive important news and updates.

First Annual Member Appreciation Party

We marked a new tradition this summer with the inaugural Member Appreciation Party, held on August 19 in Oppenheimer Park. It was a great day to celebrate our members, and gather together as a community for the first time since the pandemic began. Thanks to our friends at Save on Meats who catered the event with burgers and sides!
Policy Advocacy

As part of our mission to increase the visibility of binners and amplify their voices at the policy level, Binners’ Project regularly engages on issues related to sustainability, equity, and community economic development with all levels of government.

This year, we worked closely with City of Vancouver staff after the implementation of a 25 cent fee on disposable cups beginning on January 1, 2022 which we argue disproportionately impacts people in poverty.

After our appeal to City Counsellors to revoke the fee was voted down, we have continued working closely with City staff to come up with creative solutions that will help mitigate the impacts of the cup fee on people in poverty.

In the News

We were featured in a number of media stories last year, including features on our Coffee Cup Revolution, the expansion of the refund system to include milk beverage containers, and our advocacy for the removal of the Vancouver-wide fee on coffee cups.

Without ready access to clean, reusable alternatives, people in poverty will, almost singularly, be responsible for paying into a system that will otherwise not benefit them.

Coffee Cup Revolution

The Coffee Cup Revolution is Binners’ Project’s flagship event where binners are invited to bring used coffee cups for a refund at our one-day depot. This event demonstrates binners’ willingness and readiness to participate in a refund system on cups, in order to reduce the millions of cups that end up in B.C. landfills each week. This year, we celebrated the eighth annual Coffee Cup Revolution, which made a comeback after being cancelled in 2020 due to the pandemic.

The event faced a number of challenges this year as we were forced to move from our founding location at Victory Square Park due to a scheduling conflict with a film resulting in our permit being revoked.

Unfortunately, we had to pause outreach and advertising for the event while we found a new location, which significantly impacted our numbers on the day-of. Ultimately, we set up the event in Oppenheimer Park on a sunny day in October, 2021; welcoming 115 binners who returned 44,400 cups and earning themselves $4,440 in just 3 hours.

This year’s event was the first time we refunded cups for 10 cents each in order to align with provincial changes to other refundable containers.
Infrastructure Programs

Binners Hook

It was a successful year for the Binners Hook, as we sold a grand total of 10 hooks last year!

This small but mighty program offers Vancouverites a way to separate their refundables from their blue bin recycling, making binners’ work more accessible, efficient, and safer. As an added plus, hanging a hook in your alley gives binners’ work extra visibility, and lets them know: I see you and I appreciate you.

You can get your Binners Hook by visiting our website. Binners Hooks are made locally by our friends at Metal Mart.

Universal Cart Initiative

The Universal Cart Initiative is a bold and innovative program to provide binners ready, legal access to carts that are purpose-built for binning.

The system is simple and works like a bike sharing system: The carts will live on the streets, giving binners access to use them as they need. Binners register for the program with just their voice, using a special passphrase to unlock the carts through our custom voice-recognition technology. The program will be free to use, with an orientation required for participants to help them get to know how to use the system, and learn how to hook up the bike attachment.

Work began on the Universal Cart initiative in 2016, and while we’ve faced a number of delays to launch during the pandemic, we made significant progress on important milestones including the final fabrication of all carts and stations, as well as the hiring of a new full-time position dedicated to development and delivery of the carts program.

We are extremely optimistic about being able to finally deliver this program to the community in the coming fiscal year.
Annual Fundraiser

After hosting our fundraiser virtually last year, we were so excited to gather in a hybrid in-person and online event in 2021. Our fundraiser is always a fun opportunity for our network to familiarize themselves with Binners’ Project’s programs, including hearing directly from binners themselves. Then, the room works collectively to raise money to reach our goal with each person announcing their donation one by one, live auction-style.

Incredibly, we raised $30,902 this year to support the continuation of our programs as we continue to make our way out of the pandemic, which has halted a number of our social enterprise contracts. Huge thanks to our host Ash MacLeod, whose team at Save On Meats also catered our event!

We acknowledge the binners, whose dedication and effort inspires the incredible team of staff, volunteers, funders, and supporters Binners’ Project is fortunate to have in its corner. Additionally, we take this opportunity to recognize the contributions of the following groups and individuals:

In Memoriam

This year we said goodbye to a number of our members who have passed away, including Binners’ Project co-founder Ken Lyotier. We also remember: Kurt M., Nikki M., Angelica M., Ledia T., Cathy M., Robyn L., and Sam H.

Ken was a co-founder of Binners’ Project, beginning with the first Coffee Cup Revolution. The momentum created from this event led to the first meetings with binners over pizza in the loading bay of UBC Learning Exchange, creating a lasting foundation for what Binners’ Project is today.

Ken’s vision to promote and legitimize the work of binners has been a long road, with his advocacy for the bottle bill that created the Return-It system beginning in the 1990s. This movement led to his founding of the binner-led depot, United We Can.

In 2014, he co-founded Binners’ Project alongside Anna Godefroy and Gabby Korcheva to create a space where binners could organize, generating more opportunities for them to earn income and to amplify their voices as waste-systems experts.

Ken’s work lives on, and Binners’ Project will continue being fierce advocates for the principles he held dear. We are so proud to be part of Ken’s legacy – one that saw clearly the vision of a city where binners were included, supported, and valued. The vision of a Downtown Eastside that thrives from the strength of a robust informal economy. In our last meeting with him he told us: When binners are included, it will change everything.
